

November 7, 2016

MONEY

---

Election Day freebies 2016: 7-Eleven coffee, Krispy Kreme doughnuts and more

Jordi Lippe-McGraw
TODAY

20 hours ago

No matter what your political views may be, there's certainly one thing everyone can agree on for this election: You need to vote.

As one of the most controversial presidential campaign seasons comes to an end, more and more people are urging fellow Americans to hit the polls Nov. 8. Part of that push is coming from companies offering Election Day freebies as a sweet incentive to vote.

This has been a tradition for several election seasons now where big brands like Zipcar, Starbucks and JetBlue offered everything from discounts and contests to complimentary products. Four years later, these awesome deals are popping up again, and all you have to do is exercise your constitutional right.

Here are some of the best Election Day deals. Now go vote!

Discount Burger at BurgerFi Nationwide

This burger-joint chain knows a lot of people are conflicted with their vote this year, and is honoring the tough decision with some grub. If you come in to participating locations Nov. 8 with an "I Voted" sticker, you'll get a Conflicted Burger for $5 instead of the typical $8-$9.

Unique Monthly Visitors: 7.3 million